The Chilli Billie is top-loading with a round glass window to see the fire through. You can boil a kettle on the top surface of the stove. The kW output is 3.4 kW, though there will be some variation during the burn cycle. There is an optional detachable side shelf which is useful for putting your kettle or pans on when not boiling.

The Chilli Billie is available in 5 colours. These same colours are available for the enclosure. Penguin Black is the standard colour for both, the other colours are Seal Grey, Charred Red, Evergreen and Storm Blue. The Polar colour is not available for either the Chilli Billie or the enclosure.

This is the baby of the penguin family, in no hurry to grow up, likes chilling out... warming up... drying off and frying up. Found hanging out in small spaces like camping pods, yurts, beach huts, shepherds huts, sheds and studios.

There is a separate loading door for the ash pan and a small lighting hole. There is an adaptation available for the Chilli Billie making it suitable for smoke control areas. There are two variations of heat shield enclosures available for the Chilli Billie called Penguin Enclosures; the round enclosure and the square corner enclosure. The enclosure offers heat shielding, underneath, to the rear and both sides of the stoves. Parts of it are double skinned to allow for the movement of air. In addition the enclosure provides a bracket for the flue.
